How We Use Information

We never share personally identifiable information provided to us.

Use the information only for the permitted purpose.

Use the return email addresses to answer emails we receive, but will first confirm that the email address matches the address we hold for the person concerned.

Complying with legal obligations

Administrative and business purposes.

In the event of a criminal investigation or a suspected illegal activity, we may be required by law enforcement agencies to share certain personal information.

Security

We take all reasonable precautions to protect your personal information.

Once the information has been received by us we safeguard against loss, theft, unauthorised access or any other misuse.

We keep your information for the purposes we collect it for, or as required by law.

Notification of Changes

We retain the right to change this privacy policy at any time.

We will post changes to this page so that users are always aware.
